- Because the body uses vitamin C at about 500 mg per hour. This product is not as likely to be rapidly excreted.
- Rutin works synergistically with vitamin C

The Vitamin C in this product is prepared so that part is released immediately and the balance in delayed stages. Vitamin C is a very powerful anti-oxidant, especially in lipid and vitamin metabolism. Of particular interest is its ability to reconstitute Vitamin E and prevent oxidation of tetrahydrofolate.

Rutin is a bioflavonoids with anti-oxidant action. Bioflavonoids are important in collagen cross-linking. They generally are an adjunct to Vitamin C. Bioflavonoids, including the buckwheat-derived rutin, have been used in easy bruising and capillary fragility.

Vitamin C promotes tissue healing and integrity, enhances immune function, has an anti-histamine effect, an antiviral and antibacterial effect. It is required for the production and maintenance of collagen by its part in the synthesis of chondroitin sulfate and the synthesis of hydroxy proline from proline. It plays an active role in the production of neurotransmitters. It is involved in lipid metabolism, particularly in its role in Carnitine synthesis and cholesterol metabolism. It is a component of major drug metabolizing enzyme systems. It is extremely important in wound healing and immune function.
